EVENT DESCRIPTION

Date	29th November 2024
Author	Amela Ajanovic
Institution	Vienne University of Technology (TU WIEN)
Event title	8th AIEE Energy Symposium on Energy Security 2024
Event description:
The 8th AIEE Energy Symposium on Energy Security is organized by the Italian Association of Energy Economists – AIEE (www.aiee.it), the Italian affiliate of the IAEE (www.iaee.org), with the scientific contribution of the Interdepartmental Centre “Giorgio Levi Cases” for Energy Economy and Technology at the University of Padua. At this event, emerging security challenges and opportunities resulting from global efforts to lower CO2 emissions by reducing consumption of high-carbon energy sources were addressed with the focus on the impact of climate change on the global energy system considering both mitigation and adaptation actions and their possible impacts on the transition roadmap toward a decarbonized system. An important topic was sustainable mobility, especially electrification in the transport sector. During the workshop experts from diverse backgrounds and entities have debated on energy security and the need of a net zero emission society, pointing different paths of the transition. In the scope of this event Amela Ajanovic has participated as invited speaker in the Duel Plenary Session with the title “Sustainable mobility challenges for the transition targets”. This opportunity is used to actively promote PELMOB project, highlighting its core ideas and relevance of electric vehicles for sustainable mobility. The interactive discussion with audience reflected high importance of this topic.
